Home is where you love and live

There really is no place like home. We realise how precious it is to have a place to call home. Creating the perfect home for you and your family is more than the timber, bricks and nails that hold it all together.

A home is where families gather, memories are created and love is shared. This is Metricon's commitment to all Australians and it will never change – to help you build a home where you can love where you live.

Our design approach

The belief that Australians should love where they live underpins our design approach. We challenge ourselves to maximise space and inclusions in every home to suit contemporary Australian lifestyles. All our designs focus on value and affordability and reference the latest trends.

We value community

Our customers are our number one priority and we know they're connected to causes and communities that matter to them. This is why we're proud to be able to give back to charitable organisations such as Canteen and Habitat for Humanity.

A business is only ever as good as its people. We've fostered a team of talented individuals and provided them with the support, training and development they need to best serve you. Our people are personable, friendly, and always have your best interests at heart. Having so many talented Metricon team members around the country, doing what they love, is reflected in our beautiful homes and incredible customer service.

Certified Quality Management

Metricom proudly holds ISO 9001 certification, an internationally recognised quality management standard. ## Where we build

Metricom builds homes in four states: Victoria, Queensland, New South Wales and South Australia. We also service parts of regional Australia and team up with local trades to get amazing results.
